

Vale Glenn Zerby

Glenn Zerby passed away unexpectedly from a very atypical heart attack.

He was truly the quintessential man - scarily intelligent and moral to such an extent that he could not utter a lie to save his soul. He lived in a black and white world where the absolute truth was his ultimate goal. He always chose, professionally and personally, to do what was right. Amazingly humble, never even wanted people to call him "doctor". He was a chemist and physicist in his brain, a doctor in his skin and a farmer in his soul.

He never turned away someone in need. He dispensed hundreds of dollars worth of medicine and only asked for a phone call in return. Always had his doctor bag handy for home visits.

He was as strong as an ox when he needed to be and yet his soul was soft enough to be melted by a kitten. He loved me unconditionally to the end of the universe. I was truly blessed to have had him by my side and will desperately miss the simple sensation of holding his hand. He was the best gift ever, but it wasn't meant to be forever....

There will be no funeral or memorial service (his wishes). If people truly want to honor him, lead a righteous life, don't lie, know the power of your thoughts and words, examine both sides of any situation before speaking, treat others kindly and fairly. Or plant something to nurture the island.

Glenn, may you be resting on heavenly clouds with playful puppies jumping all over you. Until we meet again, Sandy
